

DOUG D. BOWMAN, CPA

Technical Manager, AICPA—Accounting and Auditing Publications Durham, NC

Role at AICPA

Responsibilities include:

- ⇒ Updating accounting and audit guides, checklists and other products for new technical guidance, including the recently released FASB *Accounting Standards Codification*TM
- ⇒ Authoring industry alerts
- ⇒ Developing nonauthoritative practice aids
- ⇒ Technical review of best-selling AICPA publication, Accounting Trends & Techniques, including the inaugural 2009 edition of a sister publication, IFRS Accounting Trends & Techniques
- ⇒ Technical research in response to inquiries from members
- ⇒ Participant in a number of other special projects and product development that supports the Professional Publications product offering

Experience

18 years of experience; 6 years in public accounting and 12 years in industry (including 3 years with the AICPA). Prior to joining the AICPA in 2006, Doug was a controller with a large, publicly traded manufacturer from 2001 to 2006 during which time Doug held a lead role in developing the appropriate accounting policies and identifying the necessary system changes to support a shift from domestic manufacturing to global sourcing. Prior to that, Doug spent a number of years in industry and public accounting, gaining significant experience with construction accounting and preparation of current and deferred income tax provisions. Doug started his career at Arthur Andersen as a tax associate.

Education and Professional Affiliations

BS in Business Administration
Master of Accounting
University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill (1986–1991)
American Institute of Certified Public Accountants
North Carolina Association of CPAs

Outline: FASB Accounting Standards Codification

Today's session is designed to help you better understand

- The purpose, meaning, and structure of the Codification
- How to implement FASB *Accounting Standards Codification*TM (ASC)
- Available resources to aid in the transition